Robin Schilling, Regulatory Product Management at ArisGlobal

My passion is helping people, teams, companies, and government agencies to grow and excel by identifying areas to cultivate strengths, create value, and optimize efficiency of operations and processes while remaining compliant with regulatory expectations and good ethical practices.

I love to delve into how an organization works, collaborating with individuals and teams to analyze data and processes in order to develop and implement strategic plans and programs in alignment with the company's vision, mission and business development goals.

With many years' experience managing global teams and leading a diverse range of projects in both public and private sector, I enjoy engaging stakeholders at all levels, from senior management to finance to clients to new hires, so that I can build a unified, engaged team with a common vision that understands its purposes and maximizes its strengths to create value and get the job done!
